

Environmental Policy

Some voices and some messages are too important to be blocked out, silenced, ignored. As a planet we have reached a time of many worries. While our products are helping people to stay focused on the things that are most important to them, our overarching aim is to focus on the biggest of all pictures: a sustainable future for everyone.

At Silen we are prioritising the safety and the well-being of our planet. We are committed to continually improving the environmental impact of the materials we use and of the products we sell.

We are never silent about the environment

Silen is committed to designing and engineering products that complement the times we are living in. Since the roles of jobs, companies and industries are now in a constant flux, we are proud to be selling a product that is easily adaptable, upgradeable and long-lasting. It is ready to react when you are.

The materials that go into our products are carefully chosen to support the long-term health of their users and of the environment in which they operate. Wherever possible, we use materials that are recyclable or which's ingredients are certified to be safe for humans and for the planet.

We regularly assess new materials that appear on the market to see whether we could take another step towards making Silen's production chain more sustainable. We also make sure that the production facilities where our products are made do not stray far from our core principles.

Every person at Silen – be it designers, engineers or the management – is dedicated to our Promise to the Environment.

Our Promise is to always:

- Work with supply chain partners who share our values
- Create products that are versatile, adaptable and long-lasting
- Be on the look-out for more eco-friendly materials and production options
- Follow all necessary environmental legal requirements

Together we will not stay silent about the greatest message that needs to be shared.

Endrus Arge

CEO and Founder of Silen Space

